DEDICATION LAST SUNDAY

Ohio Valley Baptist Church in Panhandle Was Dedicated. A Large Crowd Present.

The new Baptist Church in Panhandle was dedicated last Sunday in the presence of one of the largest crowds ever gathered in that section. The dedicatory sermon was preached by Rev. Bow, of Louisville, a forceful and interesting speaker. A debt of $175 hung over the building and before the sermon every dollar was raised. The house is not furnished with suitable seats and a collection was taken and $33.05 collected. Rev. W. R. Gibbs, who has been the pastor for the last year and upon whom has fallen the greatest part of the burden of lifting the large indebtedness seemed to be the happiest man there. He witnessed with sincere delight the realization of an accomplished task which a years untiring efforts had brought about.

The afternoon services were conducted by Rev. T. A. Conway, of this place, who preached to a large audience that still remained. The protracted meeting at the Chestnut Hill Church gave way for the occasion.

The people of that section vied with each other in the extent of their hospitality, and though a much larger number of people was present than was expected, yet an ample sufficiency of the very choicest things to eat was placed before the great crowd.

A Citizens Ticket.

There has been filed with the County Clerk a Citizens ticket for Mayor and Councilmen for the City of Marion, at the November election, and it is made up of as good material as the town affords, and is as follows:

J. W. Blue, for Mayor.

For Councilmen, Democrats—R. I. Nunn, J. B. Hubbard and Jesse Olive.

For Councilmen, Republicans—W. B. Vandell, J. T. Pickens and H. V. Stone.

The Control of the Illinois Central.

A vigorous contest for the control of the Illinois Central railroad is being waged between Stuyvesant Fish and E. H. Harriman. Once these two men were warm friends and allies. But something more than a year ago Harriman obtained possession of 100,000 shares of the Illinois Central, which he sold to the Union Pacific. But as he was in absolute control of the latter road, he was after the sale quite in as much possession of the shares as he had been before the transfer. At all events he used the shares to turn Fish out of the presidency of the road, which place Fish had held for twenty years. He did more. He substituted for Fish a subordinate officer—Harriman—who, a short time ago at a meeting, was knocked down by Fish for applying a short and ugly word to some statement of the latter.

At the present stage of the contest

it looks as if Fish would regain control. Proxies which some time ago were given to Harriman are being concealed in the interest of Fish. Thursday at a meeting of local stockholders in the Illinois Central road in Hartford, the proxies of more than 8,000 shares were turned over to Fish. It does not, of course, affect the final result, but it is of record that this was done as the choice of the lesser of two evils. In short, Hartford is against Harriman.

But if there was a Fish victory in the Connecticut capital, Harriman had a triumph in Massachusetts. The latter scored in Worcester and vicinity in getting about 3,000 proxies. So as between the Nutmeg and the Bay state, Fish is ahead by about 5,000 proxies. It is reported that the agents of both forces are scouring New England, picking up even the proxies of single shares. Thus it appears that New England will determine the interesting contest. Also that the vote will be close since such extraordinary methods are taken to obtain the voting power.—Evansville Courier.

Presbytery.

Princeton Presbytery of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church met at Rose Creek, near Nebo, Hopkins county, Ky., Tuesday, Oct. 8, at 7:30 p. m. The Rev. A. C. Biddle preached the opening sermon by request of Elder G. H. Whitecotton the retiring Moderator, six ministers and four candidates for the ministry were present and seventeen congregations were represented. The Rev. J. B. Lowery was chosen moderator by acclamation. The sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered at eleven o'clock on Wednesday. Rev. J. R. King preached from Matthew 26: 26-28. Rev. W. T. Oakley in a very impressive way administered the sacrament. The Spirit of the crucified Redeemer seem to rest upon the people and every head was bowed and tears coursed down the cheeks of hundreds as the death and sufferings of our Lord were brought fresh to their memory. Many shouts were heard as the meeting closed with a general hand-shaking. The four candidates M. C. Lloyd, C. T. Boucher, R. A. Moore and O. D. Spence were licensed to preach the gospel. The ladies of the Women's Missionary Society held an interesting meeting Wednesday night and raised by collection and donation $14.27. It was altogether a good and profitable meeting of Presbytery. May the Lord bless the good people of Rose Creek Church.

H. N. LAMB.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to extend our sincere and heart-felt thanks to our many friends who came to us with their kind aid and sympathies in the sad and dark hours of our great bereavement caused by the very sudden death of our affectionate and much loved husband and father, and that the Lord may strengthen, comfort and keep each one, in their trials, troubles and afflictions, are the prayers of

MRS. J. L. TRAVIS AND CHILDREN.

HAGER

And Stanley Will Speak in Marion Next Friday Afternoon at 1 O'clock.

Hon. S. W. Hager, democratic nominee for governor, and Congressman A. O. Stanley, of the Second district, will address the voters of Crittenden county in the court house in this city next Friday afternoon, Oct. 18th, beginning at 1 o'clock.

Mr. Hager will present the democratic side of the issue before the voters.

The election in Kentucky this fall is one of considerable importance, inasmuch as it will have some bearing on the national election to follow next year. All who can, therefore, should hear what each party has to say.

Sudden Death of Curg Travis.

Thursday morning while sitting in his chair at about six o'clock at his home on Morganfield street, in this city, J. L. Travis, Sr., suddenly expired with heart failure. He had been ill for several months of Bright's disease but his family had not expected so sudden a termination of his illness and were quite unprepared for such a shock as his death gave them.

James Lyeurgues Travis was born April 9th, 1850, in this county on the old home place now owned by his brother Frank Travis. Died Oct. 10th, 1907 being 57 years, 6 months and 1 day old.

He professed religion at Sulphur Spring school house in the fall of 1865 and joined the Cumberland Presbyterian Church at old Sugar Grove. January 19th, 1870 he married Miss Mary E. Travis, Rev. Edmonds officiating, and to the union 4 children were born, 3 of whom are living. Mrs. John Paris, Miss Sarah Travis and Jas. L. Travis, Jr., all of this city. He had one brother Frank Travis, of Tribune, and two sisters Mrs. Robert Wilson and Mrs. Rene Travis, all of this county. The interment took place Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Oakley officiating.

Left Yesterday.

Rev. J. O. Smithson left yesterday for Calhoun, McClean county, where Rev. Smithson has charge of the Methodist church for the next year.

Rev. Smithson has been engaged in the ministerial work in this county for five years—four years at Carrsville and one at Smithland. He and his family have endeared themselves to our people who regret that he has been sent to other fields of labor. They leave with benedictions of our appreciative people who wish them life's choicest rewards.—Smithland Echo.

Card of Thanks.

To our friends who so loyally assisted us during the recent illness of our three little girls, and which resulted in the death of our darling little Ruby Dan, who fell to sleep in the arms of our Savior Sept. 16, 1907. We with hearts full of love and gratitude wish to thank you one and all for your kindness to us, and assure you we will ever remember you. May the Lord bless you abundantly, and save you are our prayers.

We mourn not as those without hope, for we know little Ruby Dan is in heaven awaiting our coming.

Crushed to Death by Train.

A sad and fatal accident occurred in this city Sunday afternoon about half-past three o'clock.

Royster Sigler, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sigler, was thrown under a moving freight train and horribly crushed and mangled, from the effects of which he died about thirty minutes later.

The unfortunate little fellow, together with Paul Sigler, a cousin, and one or two other small boys, was playing about the depot when the north bound freight train pulled out. As the train started off Royster jumped on the steps of one of the box cars and then back to the ground again. He did this two or three times, the last time his foot hung and he was thrown under the wheels of the car.

His left leg was horribly crushed and almost severed from the body and the toes and heel on the right foot were crushed off.

As soon as it became known the little fellow had been hurt several went to his assistance and he was picked up and laid on a cot.—Morganfield Sun.

Sunday-School.

Saturday, November 19, 1907.

At Sugar Grove Church we will hold our Annual District Convention. All Sunday-schools of the district are expected to be present or represented by delegation. Everybody is invited, bring your baskets filled to the handle and let us have a big day for the Sunday-School.

Princeton Presbytery.

Princeton Presbytery of the Princeton Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., met at Fredonia, Ky., Tuesday, Oct. 8, 1907. The opening sermon was preached by the retiring Moderator, Rev. A. J. Thomson, from the text: "Speak unto the Children of Israel, that they go forward." This was the keynote of the Presbytery. Organization for aggressive work in building up and strengthening the churches and for effective work in the various lines of denominational and Christian effort, was put in operation. Every ordained minister belonging to the Presbytery, eight in number, were present, Rev. D. McDonald, D.D., Synodical Superintendent of Kentucky and Rev. J. H. Miller, Pastor-Evangelist of Indiana Presbytery; were present and added the strength of their sermons and counsels in making the Presbytery a great success. All the congregations were represented but four. Rev. E. B. Kuntz, pastor at Mayfield, Ky., was received into this Presbytery from Logan Presbytery; H. J. Wilson was received as a candidate for the ministry. An order was made for the installation of Rev. E. B. Kuntz at Mayfield, Ky., by Rev. J. R. Henry, Paducah, and Rev. M. E. Chappell, Princeton. The various enterprises and interests of the church were ably discussed and a great interest aroused in supporting these enterprises. The Synod of Kentucky which meets in the City of Owensboro, Tuesday, Oct. 22, was emphasized. This is a very important meeting of the Synod and it is very necessary that each ordained minister should be there and that every church should have a representative present. The ladies missionary work was well represented. Their meetings were enthusiastic and well attended. Mrs. Goodwight from Franklin, and Mrs. Lightfoot from Henderson, added much to their meetings. Mrs. Holomon, Mrs. Young, and others always lend their presence and consecration to this work. Their public meeting Wednesday evening was a marked success. It is their motto to have a live auxiliary in every church. The next meeting of the Presbytery will be held with the Marion church. JAS. F. PRICE, Clerk.

To pauperize the farming population of five great Kentucky counties. Thank heaven, there is just one sure way to thwart the impious will of the Trust. Only insure to the Association 90 per cent. of this 1907 crop. That does the business beyond cavil. Webster and Henderson counties by the first of next month will have 95 per cent. of the 1907 crop. For our committeemen are on their nitty and will put two good discreet, energetic men to work in each magisterial district with instructions to visit owners of the unpooled scattering crops, and when these owners learn there is to date 85 per cent. already signed up, self-interest alone will impel to co-operate.

Union county already has three times the tobacco in the Association she had last year.

And Hopkins county is aroused as never before.

And gallant little Crittenden is forging to the fore.

And you, member, every mother's son of you, who read this notice—you who have your tobacco in the Association—only think what it means to you to put 95 per cent of the 1907 crop in. Then get out your horse and light out to your non-member neighbor. If properly informed your neighbor can't stay out. You know your neighbor will never regret it as long as he lives if he goes into the Association. You know, in all reasonable certainty, members will realize from two to four dollars more than will non-members. That has been demonstrated by the sales already made.

By S. M. JENKINS.

Tobacco Tidings.

After midnight October 31st not one pound of the 1907 crop will be accepted by the Association. The Association must know by November first the closest possible approximation to the number of pounds of tobacco pledged in the district to the end that adequate provision may be made for the proper care of the same.

From the Clarksville Association the Executive Committee of the Stemming Association will, I confidently predict, adopt this excellent method of procedure: That Association goes along receiving and pricing tobacco, meanwhile watching the Trust narrowly to see what it is paying non-members for tobacco, and when that price is firmly established the Association makes a price on Association tobacco, which is from two to four dollars more than non-members have gotten. Last year that Association sold 39,000 hogsheds on these terms. I see where Buckner, one of the best posted tobacco men in Clarksville district, says that fifty thousand hogsheds of the 1907 crop will be pledged to and sold by that Association. Or 85 per cent. of the 1907 crop.

Last season the Stemming District Tobacco Association received ten and a half million pounds of tobacco. This year, by the 1st day of November, this Association will have under pledge to it by the same four counties, supplemented by Crittenden, seventeen to eighteen million pounds of the 1907 crop.

Think of it—this Association is now safe-guarding for the farmers of the five counties, eliminating what has been sold, twenty-five million pounds of tobacco of the value of two and one-half million of dollars; which vast sum of money, so easily written and so difficult to the mental grasp, which will finally be distributed to four thousand members of the Association.

And yet the Insolent Tobacco Trust seems, from the motions of its local agents, to be as hell-bent as on bending the wills of these four thousand Kentuckians to the cruel, greedy and rapacious plunderings of the Trust.

To pauperize the farming population of five great Kentucky counties.

Thank heaven, there is just one sure way to thwart the impious will of the Trust. Only insure to the Association 90 per cent. of this 1907 crop. That does the business beyond cavil. Suspends Mining Operations.

The Southern Lead & Zinc Co., a Louisville corporation, lessees of the Columbia mine, has suspended payment temporarily. It is currently rumored and generally believed that the suspension was brought about by friction in the company and not on account of the output not being satisfactory. We are informed that the finest mineral was being taken out in paying quantities up to the last day.

General Manager Drescher is unable just at this time to state how long it will be before the mines will resume and is of the opinion that a reorganization of the company may be necessary, which would require some time.

For Sale or Exchange.

A Dolceola, or miniature piano instruction book and fifty pieces of music. Only instrument of its kind in the county. In first class condition. Any one can play it. Enquire at the Press office.

Matthew Brantley Dead.

Matthew Brantley, an aged and respected citizen of the vicinity of Mattoon and Gladstone, died Oct. 14, 1907, of the infirmities of old age, and was buried Tuesday, the 15th. He was born in Crittenden county and would have been seventy-nine years of age Dec. 21 had he lived.

His wife who was Miss Malissa Tudor, preceded him to the grave twenty-nine years and seven months before. They were the parents of ten children, nine living now in Crittenden county and one in Hopkins county.

Mr. Brantley was a Baptist and belonged to the old Camp Creek church.

Picture Show to Leave.

After this week the moving picture show will remove from this place, much to the regret of the general public who attended. Mr. Morrison made many friends during his stay in the city who wish him unbounded success in his new location.

Notice.

On and after Oct. 10 we will sell coal for cash only. Parties wanting one load of coal will have to bring money to office or leave it with some one at the house to pay for coal when delivered, or coal will not be left with them.

Parties wanting more than one load of coal must pay as soon as the amount wanted is delivered, otherwise do not order coal, for we mean what we say as we have to pay all of our bills the first of the month following shipment.

All mines and mills will be required to pay on the first of the month following the delivery of the coal.

LAST WARNING TO TAX-PAYERS

There are some who have not paid their taxes for this year, and there remains but a few more days in which to settle to avoid the penalty; so you had better come or send in at once and settle your taxes and save the extra cost, as I will be compelled under the law to add on to your tax the penalty and interest; I hope you will not force me to do this.

HARGIS AND BRITTON FREE

Cases Charging Complicity In Cox Murder, Dismissed on Motion of State.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 9.—The cases against Elbert Hargis and Bill Britton charged with complicity in the murder of Dr. B. D. Cox, were dismissed this morning on motion of Commonwealth's Attorney John Waugh, and a similar action will probably be taken after the noon adjournment in the case against John Abner, on the same charge.

Attorney John Waugh filed a written statement, in which he said that it is impossible to make out a case against either person without the presence of Dr. E. C. Baker, of North Dakota.

At the last term of court a process was taken for him and for two other non-resident witnesses, John Smith and Moses Feltner. The latter two were present today. After reading his statement the prosecutor moved to dismiss the case against Hargis and Britton, and the motion was sustained by the court.—Lex. Gleaner.

Troubles of Bee Fancier.

A West Philadelphia bee fancier is being greatly troubled by a swarm of dragon flies. He could not imagine at first what attracted them every evening around his beehives, until by close observation he discovered that they waylaid the returning bees when they were heavily laden with honey and ate them. He does not know how to get rid of the pests. He cannot poison them, they are too quick to be caught in a net, and too small to be shot. He is racking his brains for a method to stop their depredations. The loss of a few bees would not hurt him, but the entire swarm has become uneasy, and consequently the output of honey is much diminished.—Philadelphia Record.

Stomach trouble, Heart and Kidney ailments, can be quickly corrected with a prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. The prompt and surprising relief which this remedy immediately brings is entirely due to its Restorative action upon the controlling nerves of the Stomach, etc.

A weak stomach, causing dyspepsia, a weak Heart with palpitation or intermittent pulse, always means weak Stomach nerves or weak Heart nerves. Strengthen these inside or controlling nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and see how quickly these ailments disappear. Dr. Shoop of Racine, Wis., will mail samples free. Write for them. A test will tell. Your health is certainly worth this simple trial. Sold by Haynes & Taylor.

She was His Grandma, Now His Wife

Chicago, Oct. 9.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from San Francisco says:

Tom Hugh Allison, of Manlius, N. Y., who married his grandfather's widow, is here on his honeymoon.

"My grandfather, Dr. Buffum, of Rochester, was a peppery old fellow," said he. "First he disinherited my sister because she married a barber. This left me his sole heir. He decided to marry, although he was past eighty, to keep me from inheriting his estate."

"I didn't know it, but the girl he picked out was my sweetheart, only seventeen years of age. She decided to accept to save the estate for me. That was nearly six years ago. He died a year ago and the young woman whom I called 'grandmother' became my wife."

Hard Times in Kansas.

The old days of gasshoppers and drouth are almost forgotten in the prosperous Kansas of to-day; although a citizen of Codell, Earl Shamburg, has not forgotten a hard time he encountered. He says: "I was worn out and discouraged by coughing night and day, and could find no relief till I tried Dr. King's New Discovery. It took less than one bottle to completely cure me." The safest and most reliable cough and cold remedy and lung and throat healer ever discovered. Guaranteed by Haynes & Taylor and J. H. Orme's drug stores. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Wives Wanted.

From Spokane, Washington, there recently came an appeal from a hundred young business men and farmers for suitable wives. Down in Oklahoma farmers' institutes have quit talking about merino sheep and Hereford cattle and are devoting their time to a discussion of how to get suitable housewives for the hundreds of young farmers in that State. At Randlett, Oklahoma, several score of bachelors who live in what is called the Big Pasture have organized themselves into a matrimonial association and are advertising in the metropolitan press for wives. Only last week one thousand Irish girls, bent upon matrimony, landed in New York and are reported to have been almost gobbled up by agents who want to send them into the Middle West.—Tennessean.

Quinsy, Rprains And Swellings Cured.

"In November 1901, I caught cold had the quinsy. My throat was swollen so I could hardly breathe. I applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it gave me relief in a short time. In two days I was all right," says Mrs. L. Cousins, Otterburn, Mich. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is a liniment and is especially valuable for sprains and swellings. For sale by J. H. Mine Notes.

Our esteemed townsman Mr. Chas Hina, with J. M. Stone's Mammoth Hardware House of this city, is in the receipt of a letter from Marion, Ky., imparting the pleasant news of a rich find in lead by the K. K. Mineral mines of Crittenden, county, in which he holds ten thousand dollars stock. While Mr. Hina is very proud indeed to get the news from the managers of his company that the ore had been struck in paying quantities, his many friends here are equally so. Now since the richness of this new mineral tract they so lately purchased has been revealed, work will be resumed now with renewed vigor.—Sturgis News Democrat.

Gold In Walls of Mint.

The passing of the old United States Mint building reminds old timers of the early struggles of the Government to make the maintenance of the mint worth while. Then came 1879 and the great strikes at Leadville, which brought tons of bullion to Denver and kept the mint officials busy and the institution running at full capacity. The destruction of the building marks the end of the chapter. By the terms of the contract for the destruction of the building and the erection of the new Boettcher building on its site all the material becomes the property of the contractors; and they are saving every particle of plaster on the theory that there must be some valuable settlements of gold dust in any of the previous material after the mint's long years of use. The plaster will be submitted to a process whereby much gold is expected to be extracted.—Denver Post.

Pain anywhere, pain in the head, painful periods. Neuralgia, toothache, all pains can be promptly stopped by a thoroughly safe little Pink Candy Tablet, known by druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets. Pain simply means congestion—undue blood pressure at the point where pain exists. Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets quickly equalize this unnatural blood pressure, and pain immediately departs. Write Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis., and get a free trial package. Large box 25 cts. Haynes & Taylor, druggists.

"How to Make a Million"

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING THE KEY TO SUCCESS

Told by a Man Who Began Life at a Shoemaker's Bench, Became Governor of his State and Is Now Head of a Business Empire.

BY ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

(Copyright 1907 by Henry G. Pagani.)
A face enough like Bismarck's to make the resemblance startling, a slender, wiry, boyish figure topped by a white head, a manner self-assured, yet never coarsely aggressive. There, in a nutshell, is the personality of one of the most picturesque, interesting figures in all New England—that of W. L. Douglas, ex-Governor of Massachusetts.

But it is not chiefly as ex-Governor, or indeed as statesman at all, that the world at large knows Mr. Douglas. A quarter-mile of factories, a yearly output of something over three million pairs of shoes, and a face that looks out from the advertising columns of eight thousand newspapers—these are the outward attributes that have made the name of W. L. Douglas so familiar from Maine to California.

The story of the man who could make himself so well known, his secret of achievement, his life history and his hints on business success will not only be of interest, but of profit to every class of reader.

For the description of a hard climb, of a winning fight against circumstances and the "climbers' rules for victory are always worth hearing. The world loves a fighter and takes an interest in his battles.

And W. L. Douglas is a fighter, as even the most casual student of human nature could glean from one glance at the strong, prominent jaw, the level brows, the firm set of the lips.

That cast of features set Bismarck to toppling European thrones. The same physiognomy (with a gentler mould of eye and mouth) has caused Douglas to revolutionize business, to bring wealth from poverty and political power from a State peopled by a majority that differs from him in politics.

Bismarck tore down. Douglas has built up. That is where the milder eye and mouth come in.

There is a keyword to Douglas's success, of course. Several of them, in fact. The foremost is "Advertising."

His Life Motto.

"Newspaper advertising" is his life motto in business. "First, be sure you have something worthy to advertise. Something just as good as you say it is. Struggle to keep it as good, and then advertise it constantly. The newspaper is the field in which my advertising has brought me the only perfectly satisfactory returns. And I have tried many lines before settling down exclusively to that theory."

The same "cradle" served for New England and for the man who was one day to be Governor of its oldest State. For it was in ancient Plymouth, scene of the Pilgrims' landing, that Douglas was born, in 1845. His was as pathetic and hopeless a childhood as ever Dickens pictured for David Copperfield or other of his luckless boy heroes. That Douglas rose from it to any later position whatever speaks volumes for the stuff he was made of.

In 1850 news came to a Plymouth woman that her husband, the breadwinner of their large family, had been drowned at sea. All the children were young. The mother was almost without means. So two years later she verbally "bound out" one of the brood—a precocious boy of seven—to his uncle, a shoemaker. The child's life from then on became one long era of drudgery and hardship. His uncle set him at once to peering shoes by hand. This was a task for grown workers, but the baby fingers were kept at the incessant toil of it from dawn to dark. No holiday, no let-up of any sort, and, worst of all, no wages.

The seven-year-old boy was carrying unduly heavy burdens in his life-battle. He has been carrying them ever since. His ability to do so explains why he became Governor William L. Douglas, instead of merely Jonathan Blin Douglas.

His uncle was a stern task-master. Apart from the shoe-peering, the child was called upon to perform a series of equally severe duties. Among them was the three-day journey into the woods, in bitterest New England winter weather, to cut and drag in wood for the shop's fires.

Only at rare intervals was he allowed to leave his workbench for the school-room. But at such periods he proved so apt a scholar as to make up for the long lapses. He was greedy for education and seemed to absorb his scanty portion of it without effort. It was only by this strange proficiency that he gleaned any learning at all.

For four years the slavery went on. Then Douglas returned to his mother. But so valuable had he become in the shop that his uncle induced him to come back to him at the munificent wage of $5 a month. Until he was fifteen he continued to work thus, all the time busy with new ideas along his own line. These ideas were one day to bear fruit.

Once, seeking to better himself, he went to work in a Plymouth cotton mill at $3 cents a day. This meant fully $5 a month, and he 33 raise seemed not unlike a dream of wealth. But the intended him for his original calling. Here was a literal command of "Shoemaker, stick to thy last!" For when he disobeyed the injunction an accident in the cotton mill put a quick end to his plans of becoming a weaver. Douglas was pulled out of the debris with a broken leg. That ended his cotton-mill experiences.

He went back to his mother. While recovering from his injury he attended school and once more planned for a full education. But the lash of poverty that has whipped so many men on to greatness was busy about the young student's shoulders and drove him back to the earning of a living, just as he was beginning to rejoice in his school progress.

No longer content to work aimlessly at one job and another, Douglas now set about learning the boot and shoe business from bottom to top, in all its branches. From town to town he worked his way, studying the methods of each shop until he had mastered every rudiment of his chosen profession.

Lure of the Golden West.

By the spring of 1863 he felt ready to start in for himself. Like many another ambitious boy, at that time he fancied the future was brighter in the new West than nearer home. So to Denver he went, carrying along his hard-earned stock of cobbling knowledge—and little else.

Arriving there, he found capital was as scarce in Colorado as in Massachusetts. To acquire this capital he took the first work that offered. The work in question chance to be the not very congenial position of day laborer in a lime-kiln.

Not exactly a brilliant fulfillment of the golden promise of the West, nor a direct advancement toward success in the shoe trade. But Douglas went on the principle that success consists less in holding a good hand than in playing a poor hand well.

Working hard and spending little, he at last saved enough to travel to the town of Black Hawk, where, he had heard, lived one Zephaniah Myers, one of the most skilled bootmakers in America. From Myers the young man learned the finishing touches that spelled perfection in his trade, and he soon acquired so wide a reputation in the same business as to outstrip his tutor.

Douglas and another man formed a partnership and started a flourishing boot and shoe store at Golden City.

came back to Massachusetts. Working as journeyman and later as foreman, he passed the next few years, and in July, 1876, made the plunge that began his real career. He borrowed $875 and started a factory of his own. This "factory" was small enough to be swallowed up in the most insignificant workshop of his present building. It was just 30 by 60 feet (1,800 square feet) in area. Yet it was the nucleus of the plant that now has an area of 233,950 square feet.

Prosperity came, but did not arrive fast enough to suit the ambitious young financier. He looked about for means of increasing it more rapidly. The method he chose was extensive and unceasing newspaper advertising. From the first the plan was a success. It has grown more and more remunerative each year.

"Have I tried any advertising mediums other than the newspapers?" he said recently, echoing a question of the writer. "I should say so! Magazines, circulars, street car signs and many another. Why, once I actually 'painted a whole town red.' I spread my advertisements over its fences and roofs and barns and everywhere my men could find space for an 'ad.' Oh, yes, I've tried them all. And the newspapers give by far the best results."

"Even better than the magazines?"

"Much better. And for many reasons. In the first place, a newspaper advertisement strikes the eye the moment the sheet is opened. The same advertisement would be hidden among the pages of a magazine until the reader found his way to it, if he ever did. The busiest man's eye will be caught and his attention held by sight of a strong advertisement in his daily paper. Whereas that same busy man might not find time to go laboriously through all the advertisements of a magazine."

"Then, too, practically every man reads a newspaper. Every man does not read magazines. Take a village, for instance, where the one local newspaper has perhaps 200 readers. If I put an advertisement in that paper, 200 people are going to see it. No one magazine, nor, for that matter, all the magazines combined, will circulate 200 copies in that same town. The reasoning is very simple."

"There is no hamlet or tiny settlement on the continent that is not reached by newspapers. There is no place where newspapers are not read with eager interest. So by placing my advertisement in the newspapers it is a self-evident proposition that I will reach more people than any other medium could secure for me."

Key to Financial Success.

"That is why I advertise exclusively in newspapers. I advertise not only in the papers of all the principal cities, but also in 8,000 country newspapers." If the cynical claim that "money is the final argument" carries any truth, then Mr. Douglas's sincerity in declaring the newspaper the foremost advertising medium cannot be doubted.

"In 1906 alone," he went on, "I spent $200,000 in newspaper advertisements. I should not have done so were I not sure the outlay was going to bring me adequate returns. That was a fair sample of a year's advertising expenditure. Figuring on that basis I have spent $2,000,000 in newspaper advertising during the past ten years. A fortune? Yes. But, as I say, the results warranted it."

"I have given every form of advertising the fairest sort of trial. I began with newspapers in 1883. The results were so good that later I also advertised in magazines. THE RETURNING DID NOT WARRANT ME IN CONTINUING. I withdrew my advertisements from the magazines, but later on tried the experiment again. Once more I took out my advertisements, and since then I have used only newspapers to bring my goods before the public eye."

"During the past decade, while I was spending $2,000,000 for newspaper advertisements, I sold (basing the estimate on my 1906 returns) 1,224,360 pairs of shoes. There are twenty-four pairs of shoes to a case, that makes a total of 51,015 pairs for 1906, or $1,781,500 pairs for the ten years. At the wholesale price of $2.50 a pair, that would be, for the decade, $59,044,000. Or, at the retail rate of $3.50 a pair, it would equal $111,236,100."

"In my advertisements, as a rule, I call attention to my shoes, leaving the local dealers to mention the fact that they carry the Douglas shoe."

"By the way, another excellent reason for the superiority of newspaper over magazine advertising rests in the fact that in those same local papers the reader sees the 'ad' every day of his life, while he sees it, at best, only once a month in a magazine. In other words, he sees it thirty times as often in a newspaper, and it has, therefore, thirty times as many chances of impressing him. Every man reads his paper first. Then, if he has time and inclination, he reads magazines. Sometimes he has neither, and the magazine goes unread."

"I am not a believer in spasmodic advertisement. My principle is: Keep pounding away at the reader all the time. Formerly, it used to be a custom to advertise shoes at only certain seasons of the year. I never adhered to that idea. I advertise—and I keep on advertising."

"When a season is dull I increase my advertisements. That may seem odd. Many don't do it. But I do."

"That is one of the secrets, I think, of success. Instead of hanging back, waiting for a slack season to pass, I believe in advertising all the more. This past spring, for example, was backward and cold. It was bad for trade. I did extra advertising."

"Nor, at such times, do I raise the price of shoes. It would not be fair to make the public pay for the slowness of a season. I do not lower wages in that event, either, as the 1906 scale will prove. The scale for that year shows the average shoemaker's pay in the United States was $46. In Massachusetts it was $50. In Brockton, $62; while at my Montello factory it was $70. That does not include superintendents and high salaried men. Just the workers, on the union scale."

"Another advertising theory of mine is that a good 'ad' should be changed very seldom. Of course in the case of dry goods stores or other places where special sales are held and new attractions offered from time to time it is necessary to change the form and inducements of an advertisement. But where a man deals in a single staple article, I think he should write one strong, convincing advertisement and let that stand for a long time."

"Let him make sure first that it is the strongest, best-worded advertisement he can concoct. Then let it stand."

"There are good reasons for this. Suppose a man has glanced at my advertisement for several days in succession without reading it. Then one morning he does read it. That may be the day when (if I constantly change my 'ads') I might have a weaker, less attractive, less convincing one than usual. Perhaps I lose his possible custom."

"A good advertisement is an argument. Remember that. An argument. Not a boast. It does not shout an unreasonable command to buy something. It explains to you WHY you should buy the article. It appeals to your sense of reason. It should never exaggerate in any way, but tell the mere truth."

Base Claims on Merit.
"An advertisement should never claim for goods more advantages than they actually possess. An article must have merit—real merit—and its proprietor must fight, every minute, to keep the quality high. Success must not lure him into letting up, one atom, on high quality. If he does, in the course of time he will lose. Some people get to making money fast. Then they think they can lower the quality (and, incidentally, the cost of production), and make more. I have made more because my goods are worth more."

"It is a strange fact that fully two-fifths of the shoes sold throughout the entire week are sold on Saturday. Whether because that is pay day or merely because it is a favorite shopping day I don't know, but the fact remains, and we regulate our advertising accordingly; making it heaviest toward the latter part of the week. Of course, with a magazine (published only once a month) this would be impracticable."

The Douglas shoe is sold all over the United States and also has a large sale in Canada and Mexico, besides having created more of a European demand. I employ 4,000 persons in making and selling my shoes, and I own and operate seventy retail shoe stores in the large cities. The vast area covered by my dealers renders it all the more necessary for me to use local newspapers from one end of the land to the other to advertise my shoes, and made it the more needful for me to study out carefully just what would be the best medium through which I might reach the people at large."

Concerning those 4,000 employees whom Mr. Douglas so casually mentioned, an entire article of more than common interest might be written. They form a sort of Utopian community whereof he is the head. At his expense all of them are provided with medical care in illness, and they are in other ways made to feel his personal interest in them.

The labor question assumes none of its harshest features in the Douglas plant. By special agreement between the proprietor and his workmen, all differences, so far as possible, are mutually adjusted. Those which cannot be thus disposed of will by common consent be submitted to the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation, that body's decision to be binding on both disputants.

In this way strikes and lockouts are unknown among the Douglas workmen, and the pleasantest feeling has always existed between employer and employee.

Since the beginning of his first campaign of newspaper advertising, in 1883, Mr. Douglas has gradually but steadily become known to nearly every one in America. The face that looks out from the diamond-shaped frame in his advertisements is familiar to all. Yet the face that accompanies this article gives a far more accurate idea of the William L. Douglas of to-day. The character reader may peruse there the reasons why a lowly start in life had no power to check this man's rise.

By judicious newspaper advertising Douglas quickly "outgrew" factory after factory until, in 1892, he erected the huge works now in use at Montello, just out of Boston.

His Payroll Grew.

Here his payroll grew until it numbered its present 4,000 names. Here, too, grew the facilities for turning out shoes in unparalleled numbers—about 1,300 pairs a day being the capacity now. In the jobbing house alone a half million pairs of shoes are carried at all times in stock.

The factory—or factories, for there are two of them practically joined under one series of roofs—cover as much space as the walls of an ancient city, and are arranged in rectilinear lines, with wide-reaching wings, like entangling earthworks.

The man who employed newspaper advertising as the magic wand to raise this mighty structure from the earth still works as hard, in his own way, as did the seven-year-old carrier of wood and pecker of shoes. Outside office hours he is of simple, domestic tastes, his one "rich man's amusement" taking the form of frequent cruises on his big steam yacht, the Macchigonne.

He has found time, too, as all New England knows, to make a decided impression in the field of politics. A staunch Democrat, he has served in both houses of the State Legislature, framed the arbitration and weekly payment laws, was Mayor of Brockton in 1890, and has four times been chosen as delegate to the national conventions.

His victorious campaign for the Governorship of Massachusetts was such as to awaken national interest. Throughout his term of Governor he conducted his great personal business interests as well as those of the State in such a way that neither suffered from inattention. His wide use of newspaper advertising during the gubernatorial contest was one of the most striking features of the campaign and contributed in no light measure to his triumph.

Why a man like Douglas, having made such giant strides in the world of business, should have sought the Governorship was a puzzle to many. And not a few wondered that he was not satisfied with the success he had already won.

But the man who is satisfied with success would be satisfied with failure. Do not think William L. Douglas is satisfied with either.

Honolulu Letter.

Honolulu, H. I., July 8.—As I sailed out of the Golden Gate I looked back on the hills of San Francisco, wondering if my two years absence would bring about changes that would make the city look as it did before the great disaster. In fourteen months wonders in the way of reconstruction have been accomplished in the great metropolis of the Pacific, and I feel that I can best begin my series of letters with a few words about San Francisco and its phenomenal growth after it was ravaged by earthquake and fire.

It must be remembered that nearly thirty thousand buildings were destroyed at that time, and that more than five hundred city blocks were wiped out. The entire business section was burned, entailing a monetary loss of about a thousand million dollars. How many lives were lost in that disaster will never be known. In the year that has passed the people have been city building on a scale never before seen in the world. They are building a city in its entirety all at one time.

They have already completed one-third as many buildings as were destroyed, and have thousands of others under way. If this rate be kept up until I return the city will be a better one than was in there before the disaster.

The old San Francisco was the pride of the world, and no traveler was satisfied until he could tell of a visit to the City by the Golden Gate. Because of its intense Bohemianism it was a city of infinite charm. One could walk a few blocks and imagine himself in a foreign country. Streets marked the lines between Asia, France, Spain, Italy, Russia, Poland and other countries, and the colonies between these lines of demarcation were as distinctive as the countries themselves. The people kept to themselves, holding to their old manners and customs as if they were actually in their fatherlands. When a visitor wandered into one of these districts he would hear nothing but the language of the country represented. It was a well known fact that in many of San Francisco's foreign colonies there lived people who were born there, yet who could talk no language but that of their forefathers.

When San Francisco was enveloped in flames I wondered if the old colonies would ever be re-established, little thinking that the first feature to be restored would be the unique and interesting congregating of foreigners. It is a matter of fact that the first permanent reconstruction was that of the foreign elements who hurried back to their old homes, Italy, Spain, France, China, Japan, Korea, Poland, all are again there just as before the fire, and I am sure that when I return I shall have no difficulty in finding the old Bohemian haunts which made San Francisco so fascinating to visitors.

A voyage is usually marked with little of incident when it is taken across the Pacific, consequently there was broken rest and quiet on the ship until yesterday morning, when the captain said we would see the islands by noon. His prediction came true, for just as the bell announced 10 o'clock some one cried, "Oh, see the coconut trees." There they were, sure enough, looking much as they were described by Mark Twain when he said they looked like feather dusters struck by lightning. Yet with all that a coconut tree is an inspiring sight when it first comes into view, for it brings some of the mystery of the tropics, and as we steamed slowly along the coast, noticing the peculiar green of the sugar cane fields, and on past Diamond Head, that majestic extinct volcano which guards the entrance to Honolulu harbor, we had many other evidences of the fact that we were in a new world.

The dock was crowded with people gaily decorated with flowers, while the strains of sweet Hawaiian airs from the band floated across the water. Hundreds of nearly naked boys clung in swarms to the railing, ready to dive into the waters of the bay after pennies. A languorous odor breathed from exotic blossoms, and all nature seemed to invite us ashore. Everybody seemed laden with flowers. Around their hats were beautiful yellow leis, the Hawaiian word for wreath. I gladly stepped ashore, for six and a half days on ship, no matter how pleasant the company, makes one long for a breathing spell on land.

In my next letter I shall tell of my impressions of the island city and the strange things that come under my observation while here. Many changes have come since the old days when the islands were under the dominion of the dusky monarchy, and I am not prepared to say that the change has been for the better, but a few weeks stay may show me that the flag of Uncle Sam is a good thing to unfurl over any land.

C. E. E.

Honolulu, H. I., July 12.—The most striking feature of Honolulu to one who has previously visited the somnolent city is the fact that its population has been most markedly changed in the past six years. When I was here that long ago the native Hawaiian was in preponderance everywhere, whites were in the commercial parts of the city, Chinese had their section and there were a few Japanese down in the lower part of town. Now all this is changed. Everywhere one goes he runs into Japanese, and these little brown men seem to feel that the city and all the islands of the group belong to the Mikado's empire. Their signs are everywhere, and they have taken actual possession of nearly every business. On plantations and in every business they are in evidence; the natives taking a back seat in all occupations requiring physical exertion, and leaving the field to the Japanese. An investigation shows that fully seventy per cent. of the population of the islands, which now are a part of the United States, are Japanese. This is bad enough in itself, but there is an even worse feature to this possession of American territory by the subjects of a foreign power. A large majority of these Japanese are veterans of the Russo-Japanese war and are trained soldiers. Whole regiments, fully officered and armed are said to be on the islands, and it is an open secret here that were a war to come between the United States and Japan the Hawaiian islands would be taken with scarcely a struggle. It is true there is a body of United States troops on the islands, and also a few forts with proper artillery, but these could not hold out against the horde of Japanese who are ready to take possession at a moment's notice.

I have talked with a number of prominent citizens of the islands and find that while there is a certain element, unfortunately including a number of government officials, who think the Japanese good citizens, the general feeling is that it will be but a matter of a short time until the whites will have to make way for the browns. On one plantation on this island there is said to be two fully armed, equipped regiments of Japanese soldiers while on the island of Hawaii three more regiments are said to be ready. These five regiments have five thousand fighting men ready to turn the islands over to the Japanese government.

While all this possibility hangs on a contingency, it is believed by the Japanese here that these soldiers sent here under guise of laborers have been sent here by the Japanese government in order that it may be prepared for any trouble that may arise.

The peaceful conquest of the islands, however, is something that is more to be feared than that of armed conquest, for every American knows that it would be simply a matter of a short time until the islands would be retaken. The invasion of Japanese workmen, merchants, artisans, farmers and all other classes means that these islands will soon become unfit for white habitation and will have all its commercial trend turned toward the Orient instead of toward the United States. I do not want to pose as an alarmist, but the situation seems so grave that it should be plainly set before the American people.

The whole appearance of the outlying portions of Honolulu is taking on a decided Japanese character, and one could imagine himself in the heart of Japan rather than in an American territory. While the Japanese can take no part in law making it is said they are getting an influence over many of the native Hawaiians who can make laws, and they are thus influencing legislation to such an extent that they will soon have everything their own way unless there comes a radical change in conditions.

The editor of a Japanese newspaper with whom I have become acquainted, told me yesterday that this country is especially suited to the disposition and activities of the Japanese, and he thought his government would eventually buy the islands from the United States. Of course this is but a dream of the Japanese editor, but at the same time it shows that the little brown men are doing a lot of thinking about possession of this ocean paradise.

A Geyser Clock.

One of the most curious clocks in the world is said to be that which tells the time to the inhabitants of a little American backwoods town. The machinery, which is nothing but a face, hands, and lever, is connected with a geyser which shoots out an immense column of hot water every thirty-eight seconds. The spouting never varies the tenth of a second, every time the water spouts up it strikes the lever and moves the hands forward thirty-eight seconds. —American Home Monthly.

Knocked Down by a Pheasant.

Lyons, N. Y., Oct. 9.—As Motor-man Harry Nelson was speeding a eastbound Rochester, Syracuse and Eastern car by the Blue Cut, a plump English pheasant cock flew through the heavy glass window, head on, striking Nelson plump in the face and knocking him down. Dr. M. A. Veneer was riding in the front end of the car and assisted in picking up the motorman.

The bird was killed by the impact. Until the dead bird was picked up Nelson thought he had been struck by a dangling telephone wire. He may lose the sight of the eye.

Doctors Said He Would Not Live.

Peter Fry, Woodruff, Pa., writes: "After doctoring for two years with the best physicians in Waynesburg, and still getting worse, the doctors advised me if I had any business to attend to I had better attend to it at once, as I could not possibly live another month as there was no cure for me. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me by a friend, and I immediately sent my son to the store for it, and after taking three bottles I began to get better and continued to improve until I was entirely well." Man Kicked to Death.

In view of hundreds of people who filled the grand stand at Golconda, Ill., fair grounds, last Thursday afternoon, a horse owner and driver named Banks, of Shawneetown, Ill., was instantly killed by a horse kicking him.

Banks had just finished a race in a harness event and was getting from his bike. He thought that all of the other horses had passed, but as he stepped from his sulky a belated horse ran over him.

Banks was kicked or pawed in the breast and died in sight of the horrified spectators. His horse ran away and was crippled. The horse and driver that ran over him were both injured.—Ex.

MUCH CONCERN FELT.

Ordinary Methods for Treating Catarrh Prove Unsuccessful.

Recent statistics showing an increase in catarrh have shaken the confidence of medical men in the usual prescriptions to safeguard human health from the ravages of this disease.

When stomach dosing proved ineffective, it was natural to look for some other treatment, and it is believed that in Hyomei an absolute cure for all catarrhal troubles has at last been found. Breathed through a neat pocket inhaler, its healing medication reaches every spot where there are catarrhal germs, destroys them, prevents their future growth, and soothes the irritated mucous membrane so that relief is felt almost instantly, while lasting cure is practically sure to follow.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, and is sold by Haynes & Taylor under an absolute agreement to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction. It is the only cure for catarrh that has ever been sold under a guarantee to cost nothing unless it cures, but Haynes & Taylor has so much faith in its power to cure all catarrhal troubles that they are willing to take the risk, so if Hyomei does not help you, there will not be a penny's expense. Get an outfit at once on this liberal plan.

His Dear Old Mother.

"My dear old mother, who is now eighty-three years old, thrives on Electric Bitters," writes W. B. Brunson, of Dublin, Ga. That's the way Electric Bitters affect the aged, and the same happy results follow in all cases of female weakness and general debility. Weak, puny children too, are greatly strengthened by them. Guaranteed also for stomach, liver and kidney troubles, by Haynes & Taylor, and J. H. Orme druggists, cents.

Death of Naomi Minner.

EDITOR PRESS-RECORD.

"Death loves a shining mark," has been clearly demonstrated to our little Kentucky colony in Missouri, for on Friday afternoon, Sept. 27, the white-winged messenger of death entered the dormitory of Marvina College, Fredricktown, Mo., and claimed as its victim our dear friend Naomi Minner.

Just a few weeks ago she said "Good-bye" to parents and friends at home, and full of life, hope, and bright prospects for the future, entered college to take a business course. In a lovely home, surrounded by Christian influence and the very best educational advantages, it seemed that everything favored her reaching the good of her ambition. But God hath other plans for her, and so, she left us.

As we looked upon her, marble form, so beautiful in death, we could not help wondering why she was snatched from us, she, so young, so happy, full of life and hope, the idol of her dear parents and loved by all who knew her. Yet we dare not question the works of God, and to the broken-hearted parents, brothers and friends, we would say in the words of one of the songs sung at dear Naomi's funeral.

Just a few more partings,
Just a few more sighs,
Just a few more tear drops,
Just a few more Good-byes and we shall meet our dear Naomi again, where there will be no more partings, but joy shall reign forever.
